

TESTIMONY OF CAROLEE FINK
SENIOR POLICY ADVISER, MAYOR'S OFFICE
CITY COUNCIL COMMITTEE ON
WATERFRONTS AND COMMITTEE ON PARKS AND RECREATION
HON. MELISSA MARK-VIVERITO AND MIKE NELSON , CHAIRS

June 14, 2012

Good morning Chairs Mark-Viverito and Nelson and members of the Committee. My name is Carolee Fink and I am a Senior Policy advisor to Deputy Mayor Robert Steel in the Mayor's Office. I am joined by my colleague Joshua Laird, Assistant Commissioner for Planning and Parkland at the Department of Parks and Recreation. I'm pleased to be here to give a status update on the Greenpoint-Williamsburg Waterfront rezoning, including its Open Space Master Plan. I will briefly describe the project's history, goals and status as well as answer any questions you may have.

On May 11, 2005, the City Council approved the Department of City Planning's rezoning proposal for nearly 200 blocks in the Greenpoint and Williamsburg neighborhoods of Brooklyn. The comprehensive rezoning set the stage for the continuing revitalization of these vibrant neighborhoods by creating new opportunities for much-needed affordable housing, facilitating local commercial development, promoting light industrial activity in appropriate areas and establishing a plan for a continuous publicly accessible esplanade and new public open spaces along the waterfront.

Since the rezoning, the combination of zoning incentives, housing programs and the commitment of public land has resulted in the construction of 860 units of affordable housing. Nearly 200 additional affordable units are expected to break ground in fiscal year 2013 and nearly 670 units are in the planning process. That's more than 1,700 affordable units completed or in the planning process despite the 2007 market crash that caused more stalled housing developments in the Williamsburg area than anywhere else in the city. This new housing has helped to facilitate commercial development--new cafés, restaurants, galleries, boutiques and hotels have opened and dozens of tech start-ups that have been drawn to the neighborhood's amenities are now based in the area.

For years before the rezoning, the Greenpoint and Williamsburg communities sought public access to the largely abandoned and neglected waterfront as well as new public open spaces. The rezoning set the stage for renewal and established a blueprint for a revitalized, publicly accessible East River waterfront, including a continuous public esplanade, a 28-acre park, new open space on publicly controlled land at Dupont Street and Commercial Street, and investments in existing public open spaces like McCarren Park.

Since the rezoning, The Bloomberg Administration has committed more than $315mm for the creation, improvement and expansion of open spaces in Greenpoint and Williamsburg. This commitment represents the largest capital investment in any Community District and 25% of the Department of Parks and Recreations' capital budget for FY 02 – FY 22 for the Borough of Brooklyn. To date, the City has used this historic investment for the acquisition of the first two phases of Bushwick Inlet Park, as well as for the design and construction of multiple sites including WNYC Transmitter Park, Greenpoint Playground Comfort Station, Sternberg Park Dogrun, the first phases of construction at Bushwick Inlet Park, and various projects at McCarren Park, including the restoration of McCarren Park Pool. In addition, the City, through its waterfront zoning regulations, has leveraged more than $50mm in private investment for new public open space along the waterfront at the Northside Piers, The Edge, 184 Kent and 155 West Street developments. The rezoning also included incentives for new pier development, which created a new transportation option for Greenpoint and Williamsburg. In less than a year 330,000 of 880,000 East River Ferry rides have originated from piers at India Street, Schaefer Landing and N. 6th Street.

DEP is also making significant investments that will facilitate 2 acres of new open space on the waterfront. As part of the rezoning, the Administration reaffirmed its commitment to demolishing and relocating a sludge tank and its operations. This $158mm process is underway and expected to be completed in 2014.

Prior to the 2005 rezoning, practically the entire North Williamsburg and Greenpoint Waterfront—2 miles of shoreline from N3rd Street to Manhattan Avenue—was privately owned and inaccessible. Since then we have made remarkable strides toward the implementation of the City's Open Space Master Plan, overcoming a daunting set of challenges, including opening up of streetends, the acquisition of private property for parkland, the negotiation high quality public access plans for many privately held waterfront development sites and the transfer of privately developed waterfront open space to public ownership with ongoing funding for maintenance and operation. The City led a seven year court battle against the TransGas Company's plan to develop a 1,100 megawatt power plant on an 11.9-acre site at Bushwick Inlet. Together with the community, we defeated the TransGas proposal and overcame numerous challenges. Over the last few years, we completed the purchase 2 of the 6 parcels comprising Bushwick Inlet Park, and successfully negotiated an option to purchase a 3rd parcel, the Bayside Fuel site. We also continue to work towards identifying suitable replacement sites for two MTA facilities. All of this has occurred in the face of extraordinary environmental remediation concerns, deep budget cuts and the worst recession since the Great Depression.

Despite these challenges, the Administration's efforts have been transformational and to date have resulted in more than a half a billion dollars in open space investments. By any measure, the residents of North Williamsburg and Greenpoint have unprecedented access to their waterfront and more and better parks than at any other time in the area's history. We remain committed and will continue to work with the community, elected officials, private property owners, New York State, the MTA and others to achieve the original vision--a continuous publicly accessible esplanade and new public open spaces along the waterfront, forging long-sought links between the water's edge and the established Greenpoint and Williamsburg communities, and adding yet another publicly accessible jewel to New York City's waterfront.

Thank you and I will be happy to take your questions.

Comments submitted on behalf of Assemblyman Joseph Lentol:

Good afternoon members of the Committees of Waterfronts and Parks and Recreation. My name is Emily Mijatovic and I am here on behalf of Assemblyman Joseph Lentol who represents the 50th Assembly District in Brooklyn. He has asked me to submit the following comments:

The City of New York pledged to provide the residents of Greenpoint and Williamsburg with three new open spaces in exchange to allow condominiums to be built along the Williamsburg waterfront. It has been many years since that promise was made: the condos have been built but the parks have not.

This pledge to my constituents has been grossly unfulfilled. We are talking about the credibility of the New York City government to the Greenpoint and Williamsburg communities. The city has to live up to their agreement. Before any other projects are started, the city must fulfill their promise. There must also be a guarantee that the next administration will fulfill this promise of building three parks. It is that simple and that important.

Testimony of Roland Lewis, President and CEO

Greenpoint-Williamsburg Waterfront Open Space Master Plan: Status of Development

Before the Committee on Waterfronts and the Committee on Parks and Recreation

June 14, 2012

Good afternoon and thank you for the opportunity to submit this written testimony. I am Roland Lewis, President and CEO of the Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance. The Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance (MWA) is a coalition of over 640 businesses, community and recreational groups, educational institutions, and other stakeholders committed to transforming the New York and New Jersey Harbor and its waterways to make them cleaner and more accessible, a vibrant place to play, learn and work with great parks, great jobs and great transportation for all.

The Greenpoint-Williamsburg waterfront open space master plan has begun to re-open up the waterfront to the public and has incorporated good design and expanded ferry service; however, there are still many opportunities to expand open public access to the waterfront and on the water.

Development and design along the Greenpoint-Williamsburg waterfront should continue to follow the principles, vision and design guidelines set forth in the New York City Waterfront Revitalization Program and the Vision 2020: Comprehensive Waterfront Plan. These guidelines are the starting point for great upland connection and good design, but should only be a baseline. We should strive to provide excellent waterfront design that will last for generations to come as well as ample and varied open space for the enjoyment of all.

In order to fulfill the promises the City made in the Greenpoint-Williamsburg rezoning, it is critical that the City keep its commitment to building a park at Bushwick Inlet and completing its other open space commitments in the area. It is critical that the park at Bushwick Inlet include opportunities for on-water recreation and is accessible through adequate paths and connections to upland areas.

In order to expand public access and to provide for much needed economic development in this area, ferry service must continue to be expanded. The East River Ferry service has proven to be a great success on both of these fronts. The East River Ferry pier at India Street not only provides the necessary infrastructure for the ferry, but also provides easy access to the waterfront and a place for community interaction that enlivens the waterfront as well as the adjacent upland areas. The ferry service brings increased traffic to the area and allows for retail and commercial efforts to thrive. MWA continues to advocate for expanded ferry service in New York City because of the great benefits that it provides.

As water quality has vastly improved, more and more people are interested in getting not only to the water's edge, but onto and into the water. The investment in structures to allow for recreational boating and maritime education through Community Eco Docks is a great way to increase community cohesiveness, to enliven the water, and to provide great public access.

Maritime and environmental education that can be integrated into structures such as Community Eco Docks fosters a great interest in the waters that surround our city and encourages individuals to be environmental stewards.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify today and I would be happy to answer any questions you might have.

ON BEHALF OF THE NEWTOWN CREEK ALLIANCE

HEARING BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL COMMITTEE ON WATERFRONTS AND THE COMMITTEE ON PARKS AND RECREATION ON THE GREENPOINT-WILLIAMSBURG WATERFRONT OPEN SPACE MASTER PLAN: STATUS OF DEVELOPMENT

JUNE 14, 2012

Thank you for the opportunity to testify today concerning the status of development of the Greenpoint-Williamsburg Waterfront Open Space Master Plan. I am Christine Holowacz, Vice-Chair of the Board of Directors of the Newtown Creek Alliance and longtime community advocate in Greenpoint, where I wear many hats. Today I offer this testimony on behalf of the Newtown Creek Alliance, a community-based organization committed to restoring, revealing and revitalizing Newtown Creek, to urge the Council to take necessary action to follow through on promises made to the community during the 2005 rezoning of North Brooklyn.

The Newtown Creek Alliance represents the interests of community residents and local businesses who are dedicated to restoring community health, water quality, habitat, access, and vibrant water-dependent commerce along Newtown Creek. Since 2002, the Alliance has served as a catalyst and channel for effective community action and our efforts have made a positive and enduring impact on the health and quality of life of Creek-side communities. In particular, two open space sites under discussion today, the Barge Park site and the Commercial Street site, border Newtown Creek and will be the focus of our comments.

Greenpoint is a waterfront community that has experienced decades of negative environmental impacts due to its proximity to heavy industry. In the past two decades, accelerated by the 2005 rezoning, Greenpoint has faced a different set of challenges related to gentrification, with elevated housing prices, displacement of long time residents, and increasing pressure on transportation infrastructure now being the norm. For Greenpoint residents, the ironic fact is that access to a waterfront breeze is actually more limited today than it was in the industrialized past. Talk to any long time resident and you will hear stories of ample access to piers and bulkheads at any street end. Not to say this was the ideal or safest form of waterfront access, I mention it to highlight how the promised community benefits of the rezoning have not been delivered.

The expansion of Barge Park, situated at the mouth of Newtown Creek with water on two sides [but no waterfront access!] depends on the DEP's completion of sludge loading capacity at Whale Creek, which would liberate the waterfront Sludge Tank site and allow for the development of open space as well as affordable housing. Originally expected to be complete in 2007, sludge loading on Whale Creek is still under development. We urge the Council to hold DEP to their commitment to move as quickly as possible to transfer sludge loading to Whale Creek and to prepare the Sludge Tank site for open space development.

At the Commercial Street site, open space development has stalled due to squabbling over where to move the MTA vehicles that are parked there. The relocation of a parking lot is nowhere near as complicated as, say, reconfiguring a sludge loading facility, yet this negotiation has proven a complete failure. We urge the Council to bring the NYC DOT and MTA to the table to finally push through the relocation of this MTA parking lot and deliver this important waterfront site for open space.

The health of the communities surrounding the Creek is compromised by the lack of open space. On average in New York City 26% of the land is reserved as open space. Brooklyn Community District 1 ranks well below the city average with a meager 4.3% of the land dedicated to open space. Deprived of quality open space and recreational facilities, many residents and workers make do with poor, even dangerous, access to the Creek. The Newtown Creek Alliance is committed to bringing people safely to the Creek, and in this way, inspire the next generation of environmental stewards.

We would like to thank the Council for providing a forum to discuss this important issue, and look forward to working together to resolve any future barriers to implementation for these parks.

For The Record

My name is Laura Treciokas. I am the co-chair of the Friends of Bushwick Inlet Park and a boardmember for GWAPP - the Greenpoint Waterfront Association for Parks and Planning.

My husband and I bought a home in Greenpoint in 2007 to raise a family, in part based on the promise of open waterfront space. We were particularly excited about the vision of a 28 acre gem - Bushwick Inlet Park - just blocks from our home. We understood at the time that the park would take time to realize. We didn't imagine that five years later there would be almost no progress altogether.

The 2005 rezoning deal - a series of parks and open spaces along the waterfront in exchange for allowing significantly higher development along our waterfront seemed like a devil's bargain. Being realists - we thought it was a necessary evil. But it seems now that we've been cheated entirely.

Our community becomes more crowded each day with new housing units allowed by the rezoning and yet we continue to have one of the lowest ratios of open space per person - less than one third of the citywide average.

Were tired of the excuses. Times are tough - yes. But a promise is a promise. And budgets are about priorities. *So we say - Where there is a will there is a way.

For the sake of my son, and the thousands of other kids in North Brooklyn - please secure the future of our waterfront parks so we no longer have to say "Where's Our Park?"

~~Open space often pays for itself over time thru the tax revenue generated by increased property values.~~

NAG Statement for New York City Council Hearing on the 2005 Greenpoint/Williamsburg Waterfront Rezoning

Thank you for the opportunity to speak this afternoon as part of this very important hearing on the 2005 waterfront rezoning of Greenpoint and Williamsburg.

My name is Ryan Kuonen, and I am the lead organizer for Neighbors Allied for Good Growth, North Brooklyn's leading advocate for sensible planning, tenants rights, open space and access to the waterfront. NAG was also a leader in the community's response to the 2005 rezoning.

The 2005 rezoning came with the promise of many new residents, but it also came with the promise of many benefits and improvements for residents, new and old. Seven years later, private development has proceeded at an exceptionally rapid pace, but the promised open space, affordable housing, transportation upgrades and other improvements have been slower to come.

Based on our analysis of census and building records, Community Board 1 has added 13,000 new residents since 2000, and will probably add another 20,000 over the coming decade or so.

While we are ecstatic to see the completion of projects such as the McCarren Park Pool and Transmitter Park, the city's record on parks and open space has not made the grade. Of the 39 acres of new open space that was promised in 2005, less than 10 acres (25%) have actually been acquired by the city, and of that, less than 7 acres (18%) have been built.

And while the City talks of affordable housing projects in the pipeline, our analysis shows that only one-fifth (736) of the promised 3,500 new units of affordable housing have actually been built. In fact, the City promised hundreds of units of housing on public sites and only 16 have been built to date.

The impact of the influx of new residents and new development on our community is creating increased pressures on an infrastructure that was built for another era. Our subways are among the most crowded in the city, and our streets are nothing short of chaos. The 2005 rezoning should have been an opportunity to develop a comprehensive transportation policy for our neighborhood.

We urge the Council to take action to hold the city to its promises of seven years ago and fund the acquisition and construction of much-needed waterfront parks, expand funding for tenant services to serve those displaced by the development boom and fill one of the biggest holes in the planning by funding a comprehensive transportation study for CB1.

The 2005 rezoning has brought many changes to our community, many of them positive, many of them not so much so. What is clear is that the rezoning - and the transformation of our neighborhoods - is far from complete. The process by which private development is allowed to rush forward while public commitments to the improvement of the community are allowed to languish is not just a problem for Greenpoint and Williamsburg, it is a public policy issue that affects all New Yorkers.

The assumptions upon which the rezoning was evaluated - assumptions about growth, the provision of open space and affordable housing, and the protection of existing manufacturers and residents from displacement - have turned out to be flawed. The repercussions for our community and the city as a whole are something that we will all have to deal with well beyond the tenure of this administration.

In 2005, the City Council stepped forward and forced the city to make its rezoning better. The City responded, but did not follow through on its promises to the community and the Council. We ask the Council to step up again and hold the city to its word.

June 14, 2012

To the Members of New York City Council

My name is Janice Lauletta-Weinmann. I am here today as the President of The Greenpoint Monitor Museum.

I am wearing a Civil War uniform as I was part of the color guard for PS 34's 63rd Annual Flag Day Celebration held in Greenpoint this morning honoring the American Flag. At 12:00 PM, during today's Rally on the steps of City Hall, my husband George Weinmann marched in the Flag Day Parade sponsored by the Sons of the Revolution of which he is a member. The Parade marched from City Hall Park to Francis Tavern where George Washington made his Farewell Address.

I am holding here today another flag that historically was part of the American Revolution. Its message to England was "DON'T THREAD ON ME".

In April of 1996 The Greenpoint Monitor Museum was granted a Charter by the Board of Regents on behalf of the Education Department of the State of New York. The Museum was established during Greenpoint's 197A process through the community's vision of what they would like to see developed on Greenpoint's waterfront. Since that time the Museum has functioned as a travelling Museum and in 2001 the Museum commenced its Road Show which visits local schools.

In December of 2003 Motiva Enterprises donated approximately one acre of its waterfront property on the Bushwick Inlet and the East River to The Greenpoint Monitor Museum for the purpose of constructing a Museum dedicated to the USS Monitor and Greenpoint's history. This land shares the launch site of the USS Monitor.

Within a few months of this donation, the City of New York notified the Museum of its proposal to use eminent domain to acquire this land as part of a 28 acre park to be called the Bushwick Inlet Park.

Since 2004 the Museum has attempted, without success, to free itself from this threat of eminent domain. AS THE AMERICAN PATRIOTS CARRIED THIS FLAG IN THEIR EFFORTS TO GAIN FREEDOM FROM ENGLAND, THIS FLAG TODAY REPRESENTS THE MUSEUM'S POSITION TOWARD EMINENT DOMAIN "DON'T THREAD ON ME".

Since 2004 the Museum has made improvements to the land including the erection of a flag pole, new fence and sign. It purchased a 40' storage container and picnic tables and most importantly it has conducted geotechnical and environmental testing on the land which proved the land not to be a brownfield. All accomplished through a $50,000 grant obtained through Assemblyman Joseph Lentol.

This year marks the 150th Anniversary of the Launch of the USS Monitor. Representatives from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's USS Monitor National Marine

Sanctuary attended the commemorative events sponsored by The Greenpoint Monitor Museum, Oliver Tilden Camp No. 26 Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, The John Ericsson Society among others. At these events, it was formally announced by NOAA that USS Monitor artifacts will be provided to the Museum for display once its building has been constructed on the land. The Museum will also be part of the USS Monitor Trail linking to other USS Monitor sites including the Mariner's Museum located in Hampton Roads, Virginia where the famous Battle of the Monitor and Merrimac took place. THIS IS A GREAT HONOR FOR THE MUSEUM + THE CITY OF NEW YORK + SHOULD BE RECOGNIZED + RESPECTED

I will conclude with a quote from Borough President Marty Markowitz who voted against the use of eminent domain on the Museum's land in 2005.

"The consideration section of my report expressed my view of the absence of benefit to the pursuit of mapping the property as a Park as such an action would pose a risk to the future of the museum....In addition the City should pursue a zoning map change or text amendment as part of the Waterfront Access Plan so that the museum may proceed with development on an as of right basis."

The full letter is attached.

In conclusion the Museum respectfully requests that it be freed from this threat of eminent domain to enable it to move forward in its goal of establishing a Museum on this historic land.

Ms. Janice Lauletta-Weinmann

P.O. Box 220378

Dear Ms. Lauletta Weinmann:

This letter is in response to your request dated March 20, 2005 regarding the Department of City Planning's (DCP) proposal for the Greenpoint and Williamsburg waterfront neighborhoods and its implications for the Greenpoint Monitor Museum.

As you know, DCP proposed to change the City Map to map the property owned by the Greenpoint Monitor Museum as Park and eliminate the mapped public street that extends through the property of the museum. In my report to the City Planning Commission and City Council, I recommended that the map change be approved subject to the condition that the parcel owned by your museum be eliminated from the proposal.

The consideration section of my report expressed my view of the absence of benefit to the pursuit of mapping the property as a Park as such an action would pose a risk to the future of the museum. As was stated in my report, the public goal of achieving continuous shoreline access could still be set forth by a follow up action that modifies the Waterfront Access Plan (WAP) now before the City Council. Such a modification of the WAP would result in an extension of the public access area through the Greenpoint Monitor Museum's property to the public park. In addition, the City should pursue a zoning map change or text amendment as part of the WAP so that the museum may proceed with development on an as-of-right basis.

Please feel free to convey my position with regards to the Greenpoint Monitor Museum as warranted when you meet next week with the Brooklyn delegation of the City Council.

I look forward to your continued progress towards realizing this museum. Please let me know if I can be of further assistance

Sincerely,

Marty Markowitz

To the Members of New York City Council

I am commander of Oliver Tilden Camp No. 26 Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, which is part of a national organization chartered in 1881. We are the Union descendants of the men who fought during the American Civil War 1861-65.

Today is Flag Day and my organization as well as many other Patriotic and Historic organizations honored the American Flag by participating in the Flag Day Parade sponsored by the Sons of the Revolution of which I am also a member. This parade was held while today's Rally took place on City Hall steps.

Oliver Tilden Camp No. 26 has worked together with The Greenpoint Monitor Museum from 1996 and have shared the history of its development including both its progress and its setbacks. Numerous Awards have been awarded the organizations for educating children and keeping alive the memory of the men who fought in the Civil War through the Museum's Road Show which visits local schools.

A few months after thanking Motiva Enterprises for their donation of its historic land, which shares the launch site of the USS Monitor, both organizations faced the setback resulting from the City of New York's notification to the Museum of its proposal to use eminent domain to acquire this land as part of a 28 acre park to be called the Bushwick Inlet Park. Since 2004 we have attempted to assist the Museum, without success, to free it from this threat of eminent domain.

This year marks the 150th Anniversary of the Launch of the USS Monitor. Representatives from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's USS Monitor National Marine Sanctuary attended the commemorative events sponsored by The Greenpoint Monitor Museum, Captain Oliver Tilden Camp No. 26, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, New York Department, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, The John Ericsson Society among others. The Museum will also be part of the USS Monitor Trail linking to other USS Monitor sites including the Mariner's Museum located in Hampton Roads, Virginia where the famous Battle of the Monitor and Merrimack took place. This is a Great Honor for the Museum and the City of New York and should be recognized and respected.

In conclusion Oliver Tilden Camp No. 26 respectfully requests that the Museum be freed from this threat of eminent domain to enable it to move forward with its goal in establishing a Museum on this historic land that shares the launch site of the USS Monitor.
