Int. No. 93

By Council Members Palma and Brewer

A Local Law to amend the administrative code of the city of New York, in relation to horse drawn cabs.

Be it enacted by the Council as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. Due to the large population and heavy commerce of New York City, the public roadways are congested with countless vehicles for transporting consumer goods and individuals. Horse drawn cabs offer a unique allure for residents and tourists, and are often seen among the traffic on City streets.

However, opponents of horse drawn cabs assert that the additional congestion caused by these slow moving vehicles traversing public roads creates an unwarranted hazard. When combined with cars, taxis, buses, pedestrians, bikers, fire trucks, ambulances and police cars, horse drawn cab collisions are inevitable. Accordingly, City streets are dangerous to the animals, riders and people driving or walking nearby.

As an example of such dangers, a horse pulling a cab in Manhattan on January 2, 2006, was suddenly startled and dashed down 9th Avenue, galloping for several blocks before colliding with a station wagon at 50th Street. The cab driver was critically injured and taken to the hospital along with the two passengers of the automobile. The horse, five years old and working among City traffic for only a few months, was also injured and later euthanized.

Such accidents are preventable and, therefore, the Council finds that restricting horse-drawn cabs from operating on City streets is warranted in the interests of public safety and welfare.

§2. Subdivisions a and b of section 20-381.1 of the administrative code of the city of New York, as amended by local law 22 of 2002, are hereby amended, and a new subdivision c is hereby added, to read as follows:
