The New York city building code.

The New York city mechanical code.

The New York city fuel gas code.

The New York city energy conservation code.

The New York city green construction code.

§2. This local law shall take effect three hundred sixty-five days after the international codes council adopts an international green construction code, except that within one hundred eighty days after the international green construction code is adopted, the commissioner of buildings shall present to the council recommended changes to such code that reflect the unique character of the city and recommended changes to the New York city construction codes consistent with such recommendations, provided, however, if a local law or laws enacting the international green construction code with any changes to such code and the New York city construction codes are not enacted prior to the three hundred sixty-fifth day after this local law is enacted, this local law shall not take effect.
